From the Music Director's Desk . . .

Shalom!

This month, I want to highlight some important Music History in the life of the Church. Did you know that many of our favorite hymns and old gospel tunes originally found their roots in the spiritual songs of black and brown slaves? Some of these songs were known as sorrow songs, which shared about the turmoil of those in captivity. One famous example would be the melancholy, “Nobody Knows the Trouble I’ve Seen,” which laments the suffering experienced by enslaved peoples. Other spirituals share the same message through the imagery of the Old Testament, such as “Rock My Soul in the Bosom of Abraham.” This spiritual is often sung representing safety in the arms of a fatherly figure, but originally referred more to death and final judgment. Enslaved people were overwhelmed by the emotional and physical pain they were experiencing daily, and used biblical stories to express their feelings about the torment they were experiencing.

Some of the spiritual songs were even known to be codified protest songs, which enslaved people could use to communicate with each other about the Underground Railroad and their journey to freedom. These songs were used as messages of hope, both in a religious sense (hoping for a future with God in heaven, away from earthly turmoil), and a literal and practical sense (hoping and planning for securing their freedom from slavery). One of these spirituals is “Go Down, Moses,” which Harriet Tubman herself is said to have used to identify herself to slaves looking for freedom. This song and many like it utilize the imagery of Moses leading the Israelites out of their captivity in Egypt, found in the book of Exodus.

Likewise, many of the hymns that we grew up with were also pinnacles in the Civil Rights movement. Most of you who were growing up or were fully grown during the 50’s and 60’s will remember how songs like “This Little Light of Mine” and “We Shall Overcome” became anthems for the black and brown community. “Lift Every Voice and Sing” is often referred to as the Black National Anthem, and is still one of the most moving hymns included in modern liturgy.

February is Black History Month, and it is important to note how much music in the church came from the oppression, struggle, and triumphs of the black community. We as the Body of the Church should uphold God's promise through Jesus Christ to break people's chains, support marginalized communities, and do so with the love of Jesus in our hearts! How can we do that, you ask? Well, thankfully, God sent the Holy Spirit to us so that we might go out and do God's work in the world. One way I know to do this is through music. Let's remember our history and use music as a way to free God's people from the sin and darkness in our world, and spread God's never-ending message of Hope, just as the great leaders of the Underground Railroad and the Civil Rights movement have done for marginalized peoples before us!

Selah,
Eli

One of the themes Bethel is looking at in 2019 is "Jesus is always with us". So we are starting a new activity in the Tower to help remember this theme. The activity is similar to "Where's Waldo?" but instead will be "Where's Jesus in the Bethel Tower?" See if you can find where Jesus is hidden in the Tower.

Communications Committee News & Notes . . .

One Call Now

The Communications Committee has implemented a mass communication system called One Call to distribute messages quickly to Bethel's members. You can receive text messages, emails and/or phone calls from an automated system about church service cancellations, meeting notices, and events. To be able to receive text messages, you must text "ALERT" to 22300. The phone calls will have the church phone number (540-886-6041) as the caller ID so you will know it is a Bethel message. Check in with your family and friends to make sure they are receiving the messages so they can be added to the system if needed. Also, please be patient while the Church Office & the Communications Committee is learning the new system and working out the best ways to use it effectively.
